Bruised But Not Broken Facing The Future as a Victor Rather Than a Victim

You May Have Been Bruised In Life But No One Can Break Your Spirit

Many women are victims of domestic abuse and young girls are increasingly subjected to sexual molestation on a daily basis, often by a family member. For these individuals there can be a difficult journey toward self-acceptance and positive self-esteem for they carry the burden of secrecy and shame. If you or any family member has ever been to the 'bottom of the well' because of financial debt, toxic relationships, abuse, generational curses, or shame-based memories, this book is for you.

On August 13th, 2010 this phenomenal life changing book releases internationally by The Professional Woman Network; one of the world's fastest growing publishing organizations on Women Issues & Empowerment Resources.

The authors have designed chapters which will help you to rebuild your life one step at a time. With chapters entitled "Victim to Victory" and "The Princess Within", very simply stated, this book will guide you in starting over. Every woman deserves a second chance in life and no matter your past, it is time to face the future as a victor rather than a victim. The chapters will help you step out of toxic relationships, avoid abuse, and start living a joyous life.

You may have been bruised in life but no one can break your spirit. You will never be broken. May this book provide the ways to create the life of your dreams and forgive those who have harmed you but also create a life filled with healthy people who truly support and love you.
